Douglas Chaney Earns Certified Logistics Professional Designation

July 6, 2010 (Des Plaines, IL) – The International Warehouse Logistics Association awarded the prestigious designation of Certified Logistics Professional (CLP) to Douglas Chaney, who is the founder, President and Chief Executive Officer of Distribution Center Logistics Inc., Hutchins, TX.

The CLP designation was created by IWLA, the foremost trade association for third-party logistics companies, to set standards of excellence and promote professionalism throughout the 3PL industry. To earn a CLP, individuals must complete five to six courses and make a significant educational and service contribution to the industry.

“Doug Chaney is a dedicated logistics professional who has devoted his life to not only making his company successful, but also to improving the 3PL industry’s professionalism,” said Joel D. Anderson, IWLA president and CEO. “We value his leadership and personal commitment to the betterment of his profession and the logistics industry.”

Before he founded DC Logistics in 2003, Mr. Chaney was Vice President of Business Development for Schneider Logistics, where he was the top producer in 2002 and landed the complete outsourcing of Microsoft’s transportation management. He also was Vice President and Director of the eValue Chain Practice at iXL, and Vice President, Distribution at Mark VII Transportation Inc.

He currently serves on the board of directors of the Dallas Roundtable of the Council of Supply Chain Management Professionals, Transportation Club of Dallas-Fort Worth and the North Texas Commission, where he is a member of the Logistics Committee. He was president of the CSCMP Dallas Roundtable in 2009 and will become president of the Transportation Club of Dallas-Fort Worth in 2011.

Mr. Chaney holds an MBA degree at the University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh; a Bachelor of Arts degree in East Asian studies from the University of St. Thomas, St. Paul, MN; and a Bachelor of Science degree in business from Sophia University in Tokyo.

Distribution Center Logistics Inc. (www.dcllogistics.com) is a full-service warehousing logistics and distribution company located in the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area, offering warehousing, distribution, freight consolidation, brokerage and logistics services, including a 242,000-square-foot warehouse facility and 100,000 square feet of outdoor storage.

The International Warehouse Logistics Association's Certified Logistics Professional is designed specifically for the warehouse logistics professional and is recognized by hundreds of companies. For more information on the CLP program, contact IWLA's Education Department, at 847-813-4699 or via email at cheyderman@iwla.com.
